EVIL PUTIN ORDERED KING CHARLES' DEATH

By MILES PLATTING

FAKE news that the King had DIED was issued on the orders of evil Russian President Vladimir Putin, it was sensationally claimed last night.

The British embassy in Moscow was forced to give an official statement confirming King Charles III is still alive after Russian media claimed he had died.

Last night a Kremlin source said: "The fake news would not have been issued without the OK from the highest levels - and by that, I mean President Putin."

Israelis kill Hamas boss in air strike

HAMAS leader Marwan Issa died in an Israeli air strike, the White House has announced.

Mr Issa is Hamas's most senior leader to die since the war began on October 7.

The Palestinian group, which controls Gaza, has not officially commented on reports of his death.

Israeli media sources have reported that Mr Issa was killed in a strike on a tunnel under the Nuseirat refugee camp in central Gaza last week.

The deputy commander of Hamas's military wing was considered one of Israel's most-wanted men.

The European Union, which placed the Hamas leader on its terrorist blacklist, linked him directly to the October 7 terror attack led by the group which killed approximately 1,200 people.

Unilever axe 7,500 staff

CONSUMER goods giant Unilever has announced plans to cut around 7,500 jobs globally as part of an overhaul aimed at saving £680 million over the next three years.

The Marmite to Dove soap firm also revealed it would spin off its ice cream business – which includes the Ben & Jerry's, Wall's and Magnum brands – under the shake-up.

It said the jobs affected by the restructure would be largely office-based as it looks to invest in technology to boost productivity and save money.

Former President hints he'll act over Duke's drug use TRUMP: I'LL BOOT HARRY OUT

BIG PALS: Trump and Farage

DONALD Trump has suggested Prince Harry may be deported from the US under his leadership if the royal falsified information on his visa form.

The former president, 77, spoke with TV presenter Nigel Farage on GB News, where Trump suggested the Duke of Sussex would not receive 'special privileges' if he lied about his drug use in his visa application.

Prince Harry, who has lived in America since 2020, lives in a mansion with his wife Meghan Markle their two children Archie and Lilibet.

In his autobiography Spare he revealed that he previously took drugs. In US law, it would normally be grounds for a visa to be rejected.

Farage asked Trump if Harry should enjoy 'special privileges' should it come to light he did not tell the truth.

"We'll have to see if they know something about the drugs, and if he lied they'll have to take appropriate action," Trump responded.

"Appropriate action? Which might mean...not staying in America?" Farage asked.

"Oh I don't know. You'll have to tell me. You just have to tell me. You would have thought they would have known this a long time ago," Trump replied.

Previously, Trump has said he 'wouldn't protect' Harry because he had 'betrayed the Queen'.

Jacob: Poor polls not all Rishi's fault

RISHI Sunak cannot be held "personally responsible" for the Tories' dire poll ratings, and the party must now stick with him as leader until the election, former Cabinet minister Sir Jacob Rees-Mogg said.

The Prime Minister has faced speculation about a Tory revolt against his leadership, with plotters lining up Penny Mordaunt as a potential replacement.

But Sir Jacob said it was "inconceivable" for Commons Leader Ms Mordaunt to take the job, and the Tories "need to just get on with it" with Sunak.

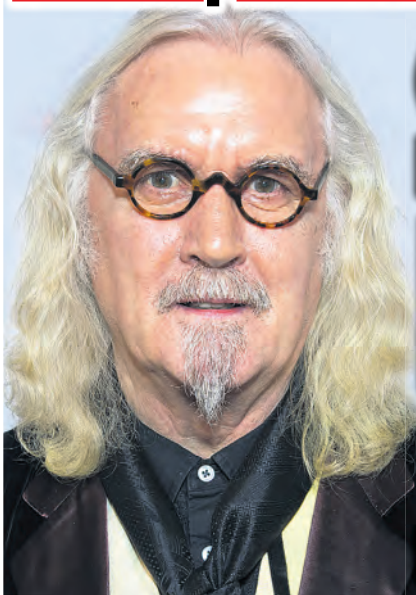

Labour has a poll lead of around 20, fuelling Tory unease in a general election year.

But Sir Jacob said: "In defence of Rishi Sunak, it is hard for a leader at this stage... to be significantly more popular than his party."

The Party's popularity fell before Rishi Sunak's did, so I don't think we can hold him responsible."

Former defence secretary Ben Wallace said Tory candidates at the election just had to "march towards the sound of the guns".

Hate cops told to target comics and actors

TARGETS: Connolly and the formerly funny Boyle

COPS in Scotland have been ordered to arrest actors and COMEDIANS under Scotland's barmy new hate crime laws.

Material regarded as "threatening and abusive" under the Hate Crime and Public Order (Scotland) can be communicated "through public performance of a play."

The Scottish Tories said this appeared to be at odds with the legislation – which gives leeway for plays – and called for the force to explain.

The new hate crime law consolidates some existing legislation and creates a new offence of stirring up hatred against protected characteristics, including age, disability, religion, sexual orientation, and transgender identity.

Police Scotland has promised

By CHIC MURRAY

that it will investigate every hate crime complaint reported, despite the force adopting a "proportionate response" approach to other crimes.

The slide from the training module deals with "how might threatening and or abusive material be communicated."

Leaflets

It reads: "The different ways in which a person may communicate material to another person are by: displaying, publishing or distributing the material, for example on a sign, on the internet through websites, blogs, podcasts, social media etc, either directly."

"Or by forwarding or repeating material that originates from a third party, through printed media such as magazine publications or leaflets."

It then goes on to say "giving, sending, showing or playing the material to another person" listing examples of "through online streaming, by email, playing a video, through public performance of a play."

A source said: "The law would also affect comedians. You can imagine someone taking offence at a Billy Connolly routine, or a show by Frankie Boyle from back when he was funny."

"The cops are going to be overwhelmed."

The hate crime laws fell further into disrepute when Police Scotland's ludicrous Hate Monster campaign was launched, to widespread ridicule.

Meanwhile, it's been reported that the Assistant Chief Constable responsible for overseeing the implementation of the controversial legislation has retired after just a year in the post.

David Duncan was made ACC and put in charge of Policing Together, Police Scotland's equality, diversity and inclusion strategy, in January last year.

The force said a recruitment process for a replacement would start this month, with the Policing Together portfolio "being looked after by another chief officer in the interim."

£60billion new wires needed for green bollocks

PILE ON THE PYLONS

THE UK's electricity network needs £60 BILLION of upgrades to hit government decarbonisation targets by 2035, according to a new plan.

About 4,000 miles of undersea cables and 1,000 miles of onshore power lines are needed, said the National Grid's

Electricity Systems Operator (ESO).

The investment would add between £20 to £30 a year to customer bills, it said. The government said the ESO's plans were yet to pass a "robust planning process".

The plans were written up by the ESO, the organisation which runs the electricity network. It is currently owned by National Grid but will transfer into government ownership later this year.

Its latest £58bn estimate is for work needed between 2030 and 2035 and comes on top of a £54bn estimate for work taking place between now and 2030.

CARA Delevingne has revealed her joy after hunky firemen saved her two CATS from an inferno which gutted her LA home.

The Brit supermodel's £5.5m mansion went up in flames last week, with her parents claiming an electrical fault sparked the blaze.

The 31-year-old wasn't at home at the time of the fire, but her two cats were, and the kitties had to be rescued by emergency crews.

Cara posted pics on Insta showing the pussies being carried out of the burning building by firefighters.

"They are alive!" she wrote alongside a snap of her two cats. "Thank you to the firefighters – thank you from the bottom of my heart to all the firefighters and people that have showed up to help.

"My heart is broken today... I cannot believe it. Life can change in the blink of an eye, so cherish what you have."

While the catwalk queen and Hollywood actress was in the UK at the time of the incident, at least one person was reportedly injured after the fire broke out at the Studio City address.

Fighters took two hours to quell the flames, with a total of 94 people from 13 different engine companies showing up to put out the fire, which destroyed much of Cara's house.

Four ambulances were called and one fireman was injured as he climbed up a ladder to put out the blaze.

Louis: Sir Bob is full of sh*t!

CELEBRITY Big Bro contestant Louis Walsh is having a go at BOB GELDOLF now.

Just days after cting-off pop weirdo twins Jedward, the former X Factor judge has turned his guns on charity fundraiser Sir Bob, 72 (above).

As the contestants gathered in the CBB kitchen in the morning, they were talking about certain songs that had been released over the years.

Speaking about one in particular, Corrie's Colson Smith, 25, asked: "Who wrote it? Bob Geldof?" to which an unimpressed Louis replied with a, "Pfft!"

Trying to coax the answer out of the 71-year-old music manager, Marisha, 38, then asked: "Who did write it... Prince?"

Then Zeze said: "I take it you're not a Bob Geldof fan, Louis?"

To which he replied: "I think he's full of shit... I don't give a fk!"

Sex scenes will up film ratings

SEX scenes previously acceptable in films with a 12 or 12A rating are now more likely to be rated 15 under updated guidelines.

People have become more concerned about how much sex and nudity can be seen by viewers aged under 15, the British Board of Film Classification said.

Under BBFC research, viewers now want "a more cautious approach" to sex scenes that are on the border of a 12/12A and a 15.

AS SUPERMODEL LAUNCHES NEW SHOW AT THE V&A MUSEUM...

ICON: Naomi

SEXY NAOMI MAKES AN EXHIBITION OF HERSELF

DETAILS of a Naomi Campbell exhibition have been unveiled by the swanky V&A museum in London.

NAOMI: In Fashion will take visitors on a journey from the supermodel's south London beginnings through her 40-year career in fashion.

More than 100 outfits will be displayed including a Thierry Mugler corset, a pink Valentino Met Gala outfit and a pair of iconic platform shoes by Vivienne Westwood.

Campbell said she was "honoured" to share "my life in clothes".

Oversight

The museum added that the "first-of-its-kind exhibition" had been developed with the model's creative input and oversight.

Naomi was among the very first people known as a "supermodel" – a model who has become an international celeb – alongside her peers Linda Evangelista, Cindy Crawford, Christy Turlington and, later, Claudia Schiffer.

Her characteristic and unique walk will be the inspiration for the event's opening scenes, followed by her childhood and stage aspirations before she was spotted by a modelling scout and quickly rose to fame.

As well as dozens of clothes and accessories, some of her earliest cover shoots will be on show too, including her Vogue Paris cover from August 1988 when she became the first black model on the front of the title.

However, two things will be missing from the exhibition – the things we enjoy far more than her frocks...

Naomi's BOOBS!

So today, we put that right...

Aaron will sign up to play Bond

AARON Taylor-Johnson "has been formally offered the opportunity to play James Bond", putting an end to months of speculation regarding Daniel Craig's successor.

The actor, 33 (above), is yet to officially accept the role, but should he do so he will become the seventh actor to play the iconic British secret agent since the franchise launched in 1962.

A recent poll suggested Idris Elba was still the public's top choice for the role, despite being 51 – old for a Bond candidate – and already ruling himself out of the running in order to focus on his popular crime drama Luther.

But Aaron, who is known for his roles in Nocturnal Animals, Kick-Ass, Nowhere Boy and Avengers: Age of Ultron, has landed the coveted part, according to reports.

A source said: "Bond is Aaron's job, should he wish to accept it. The formal offer is on the table and they are waiting to hear back."

"He is going to sign his contract in the coming days and Eon can start preparing for the big announcement."

100s more chemists set to shut

HUNDREDS of community pharmacies have closed in the last five years, which has heaped more pressure on overstretched GPs, pharmacists have warned.

The Association of Independent Multiple Pharmacies said more than 400 community pharmacies across England closed between 2019 and 2023.

And it warned of a "tsunami of further pharmacy closures across the country" due to increasing pressures in the system.

The association also called on the Government to "properly fund" its flagship Pharmacy First initiative – where patients with seven common conditions are encouraged to seek help from a pharmacist instead of their GP.

These conditions are sinusitis, sore throat, earache, infected insect bite, the bacterial skin infection impetigo, shingles, and uncomplicated urinary tract infections in women.

But the association claims the community pharmacy sector is already facing a £1.2bn shortfall in funding.

FAKE ANNOUNCEMENT ISSUED 'ON INSTRUCTIONS FROM KREMLIN'

FAKE news that the King had DIED was issued on the orders of evil Vladimir Putin, it was sensationally claimed last night.

The British embassy in Moscow was on Monday forced to give an official statement confirming King Charles III is still alive after Russian media claimed he had died.

A host of Russian news sites and their associated social media accounts reported earlier today that the King had died aged 75 as a result of cancer complications, citing

By MILES PLATTING
news@sundaysport.co.uk

unnamed 'media' sources in an inexplicable stream of posts.

It came as an image of a clearly fake statement supposedly from 'Buckingham Palace' reporting Charles' 'unexpected death' was circulated on social media.

'King Charles III of Great Britain has died at the age of 75, according to media reports,' Russian newswire Sputnik reported.

'There is no information about this on the royal family website or in the British media.' Minutes later their stories were updated after they were forced to climb down following reports the King was in fact not dead.

The British embassy in Moscow then furiously posted on Twitter: 'Reports of the death of King Charles III of Great Britain are fake!'

Approval

The British Embassy in Kyiv followed soon after with a statement that read: 'We would like to inform you that the news about the death of King Charles III is fake.'

Last night a source in the Kremlin said: 'There is no way that Russian media would have reported falsely that King Charles had died without seeking the approval from inside the Kremlin.'

"And by that I mean the highest level of the Kremlin, the President himself."

It's believed that Putin may have been aiming at destabilising the western allies after his "victory" in Russia's rigged elections.

The tyrant won another six years in power following the discredited poll at the weekend.

Spreading lies about foreign leaders is straight from the playbook of the Soviet Union's feared KGB – where Putin spent many years working as an officer in Leningrad, now St Petersburg.

Shake-up at Palace as conspiracy theories swirl

HEADS TO ROLL OVER KATE FIASCO

PRINCE William will oversee a "root and branch" review of royal PR staff after what has been described as a "fiasco" over Princess Kate's disappearance from public life.

Despite it being announced months ago that the Princess of Wales would not be returning to her duties until Easter, following abdominal surgery, wild rumours have continued to swirl in the meantime.

Furore

The so-called fake Mother's Day picture added to the furore and even footage released yesterday of William and Kate apparently at a farm shop in Windsor has only thrown fuel on the fire.

Last night a source said: "Prince

William is conscious that this has been a PR fiasco and someone will have to take the rap. Heads will roll.

"Despite the world being told that Kate would not return to public life until Easter, there have been so many rumours online that she has died or even that a new Princess of Wales is being lined up.

"This is naturally damaging to the whole Royal family and it's fallen to William to steady the ship – with his father being ill, and all.

"William may be all smiles in public, but he's got an inner steel he inherited from his grandmother, the late Queen."

The farm shop film published by The Sun apparently shows the future Queen walking quickly with a bag of shopping and chatting animatedly to her husband on Saturday afternoon.

Kensington Palace has not commented on the footage where Kate strides from the Windsor Farm Shop in gymwear.

But many took to Twitter, deciding that the woman in the footage was most definitely NOT Kate.

Randy Miss had sex with sixth former

A HIGH school maths teacher, 39, has been charged with having sex with a student.

Jelinda Dawn Keeling has been charged with a teacher having unlawful sexual relations with a student 16 or older.

The student is 18 or 19, court records show.

Police in El Dorado, Kansas, said Keeling was arrested after they got a report the day before of a teacher "having a sexual relationship with a student."

Keeling has been with the district for nearly 14 years and teaches algebra and geometry.

Local schools boss Jenifer Davis sent out an email to families, saying that they were notified a teacher had been arrested.

"Nothing matters more to the school district than making school a safe and caring place for every student, every day," Davis said in the email. "This teacher had been removed from campus and placed on administrative leave."

Angry Spaniards tell Brit tourists to fk off home

BRITISH holidaymakers have sparked a backlash in a Spanish tourist hotspot as Costa del Sol locals have pinned stickers on buildings telling visitors to "go fk home".

The incendiary message was pictured on a building in Malaga.

Other anti-tourism protests have been held in Barcelona, Seville, Tenerife and Majorca.

Locals across Spain blame tourists for pushing up rental prices, causing noise pollution and litter.

Left-wing PSOE politician Dani Perez said: "You walk the streets of Malaga and it is practically impossible to find a residential building that does not have a lock and password."

He also accused the local mayor of "not lifting a finger for the people of Malaga".

Teacher charged after sex with teen pupil SHE BOUGHT LAD A NEW HOODIE ...THEN SÜCKED HIM OFF

By BRAD CHADWICK
news@sundaysport.co.uk

A SEX-CRAZED school miss sucked off and shagged a teen pupil – after buying him a HOODIE!

Lauren King was arrested in Fort Myers, Florida, after police got reports she was having a sexual relationship with a 13-year-old student.

King contacted the boy for months after asking for his phone number.

At one point, the boy mentioned he wanted a new hoodie, and King said she would buy it for him. King then told him to meet her at an apartment complex where one of his relatives lived.

She performed oral sex and had sexual intercourse with the boy in her car. King even bribed the victim to keep him quiet and told him she loved him.

She allegedly sent him $50 (£40) after he left, along with an additional $150 (£120), in the guise of it being a birthday gift.

Jealous

The boy then tried to stop contact. However, King was reportedly persistent.

King even attempted to make the boy jealous and told him she was engaging in sexual activities with other students.

The victim told police he had other encounters with King in Fort Myers.

King also gave the boy Beats headphones, an iPhone 13, a Dell computer and sent him money for food and gifts for his birthday.

The boy's mentor told his mother about the incidents, and she called the cops.

King is facing charges of lewd or lascivious battery and lewd or lascivious molestation.

Being woke's a real downer

BEING woke makes you miserable – and that's official.

Psychological researchers in Finland have discovered that the more "woke" ideas you have, the more gloomy and depressed you're likely to be.

Study author Oskari Lahtinen, a senior researcher at the INVEST Research Flagship Centre at the University of Turku, questioned 851 people on their attitudes to "woke" statements and asked how happy they were. Researchers found a high prevalence of anxiety and depression in people who thought that men could be women and that everything was the fault of racism.

More broadly, they found that those who identified as left-wing were most likely to report lower mental well-being.

Liz relied on son for sex scene

HOLLYWOOD star Elizabeth Hurley relied on her son to capture her best angles while filming racy sex scenes in her latest movie Strictly Confidential.

Hurley, 58, admitted she felt "safe and looked after" with her 21-year-old son Damian guiding her through the scenes.

Damian made his directorial debut with the erotic thriller, which focuses on a haunted young woman who becomes fixated on the death of her best friend.

"I was 20 when we wrote it," Damian (above) said. "We went out to the Caribbean and we made it in 18 days – it was terrifying."

Mum Liz added: "He always said, 'If I ever get to make a real film, will you be in it?' And I said, 'Absolutely... your first film, I will definitely be in it.'"

The hot-and-heavy trailer released last month features Hurley kissing her co-star Pear Chiravara during a steamy sex scene.

Damian, who has been known to capture his mum's bikini pics for social media, admitted seeing her body is "not that big of a deal".

Cops called as Brit gets BJ on beach

A LUCKY lad got sucked off on a public beach in Lanzarote in front of astonished tourists.

Footage taken from a restaurant overlooking the sand showed the unidentified man, believed to be a tourist, pulling his orange shorts down before pushing his female companion's head back and forth as she crouched down in front of him.

He looked to his left and right during the act but made no attempt to interrupt her, despite the hordes of holidaymakers walking in front of the person taking the video.

The extraordinary incident happened at Las Cucharas, a white sandy beach in the resort of Costa Tegui whose amenities including diving, scuba diving and windsurfing.

Police are believed to have been called but the couple had vanished by the time they arrived.

One islander said: "They are definitely tourists and from the time of the year it is I'd say they're Brits because right now almost all the holidaymakers in Lanzarote are from the UK."

PAIR BURNED PAL'S CORPSE IN A FIRE PIT

HELD: Ronda
Parker (right)
and Summer
Heil (below)

By KIT JACKSON

news@sundaysport.co.uk

THREE people have been held in connection with the grisly death of a man whose burned body was found in a fire pit.

Cops were alerted by a text about a possible homicide in Springfield Township, near Troy in Bradford County, Pennsylvania.

The bones of Michael Pruitt, 40, were found in a pit at the property. Blood droplets were also found in the bottom portion of a kitchen wall, with a fresh coat of paint over it.

Terry Parker, 47, of Harrisburg, and Ronda Parker, 48, of Springfield Township, have been charged with homicide, abuse of a corpse and evidence tampering.

Summer Heil, 36, of Harrisburg, was charged with evidence tampering and abuse of a corpse, but not charged with homicide.

According to court documents, Pruitt was the boyfriend of Ronda Parker.

Pruitt had been staying at Ronda's residence for several days, according to police. Terry lured Pruitt into the residence by pretending to be Ronda and shot him in the kitchen, police have claimed.

Pruitt then entered the bedroom and tried to hide behind Ronda, saying: "He shot me, he shot me!"

The victim was then shot again and fell to the floor gurgling, "presumably unconscious," before being shot twice again, troopers said.

Terry then advised Ronda to clean up the "blatantly obvious" evidence.

With Pruitt's body in the boot of the vehicle, they drove to Terry's residence in Harrisburg. While in Harrisburg, they reportedly went to get ice cream with the kids while Pruitt's body remained in the vehicle.

They, along with Heil – Terry's girlfriend – arrived back at Ronda's residence in Springfield Township.

According to Ronda, she was inside the residence cleaning the bedroom, while Terry and Heil dismembered Pruitt's body and placed his remains in bags. The remains were then burned in a fire pit at the residence.

When cops arrived at the scene, they could still see the fire pit burning from the roadway and described it as "smouldering".

According to an interview with Heil, Terry was angry at Pruitt for allegedly masturbating in front of his young daughters. Heil also admitted to stabbing Pruitt in the chest and head "because she was high on meth and was angry about what he did".

All three were denied bail and are in the Bradford County Prison.

Post office needs penguin counter

THE UK Antarctic Heritage Trust is looking to hire five people for a five-month stint at the world's southernmost post office in Antarctica – including someone to sort mail and count the number of penguins in the area.

"Working at Port Lockroy in Antarctica is a job like no other," the UKAHT said in a post on their Instagram page.

The UKAHT is seeking to hire a base leader, a shop manager and three general assistants – all living at the "remote but hectic" location.

Port Lockroy is located on Goudier Island which sees around 18,000 cruise ship visitors a year – making it one of the most visited sites in Antarctica.

WIFE, 82, IS STABBED TO DEATH BY CARER HUBBY

A RETIRED maintenance worker who was weary of caring for his 82-year-old ailing wife stands accused of fatally stabbing her 40 times with a kitchen knife.

Anthony Heaton, 74 (below), is also said to have strangled his wife of 40 years, Mary, in what cops claim was supposed to be a murder-suicide – until the suspect lost his nerve and failed to finish the plan at their home in Wanagh, New York state.

Anthony allegedly called one of the couple's three adult children after he killed their mum to say what he had done, and the son, who was on a bike ride, collapsed, which prompted emergency services to be notified of the incident.

When police got to the elderly couple's home, Anthony greeted them at the door and confessed in a "very surreal" scene, said Stephen Fitzpatrick, commanding homicide officer with the Nassau County Police Department.

Copper faces prison over piss-licking

A COP has pleaded guilty to forcing a detainee to lick pee off the floor of his jail cell.

Michael Green, 26 (above), resigned from the Pearl Police Department in Mississippi, four days after CCTV caught him forcing the man to commit what officials called a "disturbing" act.

Green, who pleaded guilty to a charge of deprivation of civil rights, had only been on the force for six months when he carried out the abuse of power.

The unnamed victim knocked on a door and tried to tell Green that he needed to use the toilet, but ultimately urinated in the corner of the cell after his request was ignored for some time.

Green then forced the jailbird to lick it up.

Green remains free on bail until his May 24 sentencing, but faces up to one year in prison and a £9,000 fine.

GRIN AND BARE IT!

By WENDY THOMAS
news@sundaysport.co.uk

LET'S be honest, there's plenty to be glum about at the moment...

War in the Middle East again, Putin pointing his rockets at our heads, potholes, the overstaffed NHS falling apart, woke bollocks, the list goes on and on...

But today is International Happiness Day.

Ironically, the day is the brainchild of the United Nations – a body that has contrived to bring ill-feeling and misery to many since World War 2.

The UN proposes the laughable notion that "being happy is a human right and worth celebrating – and if you're not already happy on this day, the celebrations may change that!"

As there is nothing the UN can do to make anyone happy, maybe we can have a go.

Perhaps five pages of grinning babes with their boobs out will do the trick?

There now, that's raised a smile, ain't it?

#MY SEX FANTASY

I LOVE to film my own X-rated sex tapes!

It's a lot of fun and a huge turn-on to get the camera out when I'm getting naughty.

I have a little tripod for my phone and I hook it up to my big screen telly, so filming doesn't interfere with us being intimate.

While in the moment, I love being able to watch ourselves going at it on the screen. That just eggs me on to be even more filthy!

I often get some inspiration while watching porn films. If I see something really hot, I'll think, 'Hmm... I'll incorporate that into my own movie next time'.

I often start the tape with a little teasing first - I'll slowly strip off and caress myself.

I love to play up to the camera!

And when I get really aroused then I really get going and love to play with myself properly.

I always think giving a blowjob looks incredibly horny on film, too. I make sure I give a top notch porn star performance!

And then we get to watch it back of course... maybe next time to get us in the mood.

Just the thought of it makes me horny!

A MUM murdered and dismembered by her husband may have been ALIVE when she was decapitated.

Meil Li Haskell (above), the 37-year-old wife of Sam Haskell IV, the Hollywood exec's son charged with murdering her and her still-missing parents, was decapitated with a "single sharp force" at the base of her neck, according to the autopsy report.

An unspecified "sharp powered tool" appears to have been used to remove her head and arms as the bone at the amputation sites was "remarkably smooth," the Los Angeles County Medical Examiners' report noted.

"There was no definitive indication the dismemberment occurred antemortem, however, the possibility that the head and neck removal was initiated prior to death cannot be entirely excluded," the coroner wrote.

Mei Li's death was ruled a homicide with the likely cause of death being blunt force trauma to the head/neck, possible gunshot wounds to the head, or a sharp force injury.

Hubby Haskell has been charged with three counts of first degree murder.

COUNCIL bosses have banned overnight camping at a beach because of a tsunami of HUMAN SHIT!

The California Coastal Commission announced that overnight camping and campfires will be banned at San Carpoforo Beach for the next two years.

San Carpoforo – or “San Carpo” – is located about a four-hour drive south of San Francisco.

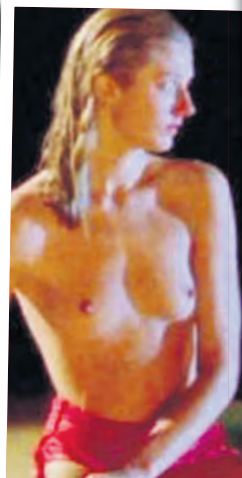

The commission detailed the deteriorating quality of the beach in a staff report recently made available.

"The beach has no restrooms, very limited parking, no potable water, and no trash containers or collection," the commission wrote in the staff report.

An insider also pointed to the massive stools hazard, explaining that the lack of lavvies has led to a "tsunami of human poo".

The area is home to a number of endangered animals – such as the western snowy plover, which have been seriously harmed by the beach's deteriorating conditions.

GUY Ritchie is back with another crime caper in The Gentlemen, which is available to watch now on Netflix.

The new eight-part series is a spin-off of his 2020 film of the same name and, although it is set in the same universe as the movie, features a new plot and cast.

The film starred Matthew McConaughey, Colin Farrell and Hugh Grant – but none of them have returned to the franchise to appear in the TV series.

However, The White Lotus's Theo James leads the way in the telly series as Eddie Horniman, a soldier who unexpectedly finds himself saddled with a cannabis empire after inheriting his father's country estate and dukedom.

series, Vinnie said: "I think he was warmed that I was on the set and I was warmed that we were reunited."

And speaking at the premiere, Ritchie said adapting the film into a TV series "actually turned out to be easier than I anticipated".

"You feel that this could run and run," he added, "the characters take on their own life, all you have to do is establish a character and create their own voice, and then couple that with an actor and we're off to the races."

Many eyes will be on Joely Richardson, who plays Lady Sabrina, The Dowager Duchess of Halstead.

Joely has been topless and NUDE in previous roles. Here are a few...

STUNNING Mica Martinez isn't a fan of dressing up in the bedroom – because she prefers taking her clothes OFF!
The 32D rock chick said she feels sexiest when she is stark naked and loves to show off her jaw-dropping figure.
And Mica isn't shy about where she strips off, either – she made the cheeky confession that the thought of being caught mid-shag really turns her on.
Mica, from Shoreditch in east London, said: "I'd much rather strip off, every time. I think there's nothing more beautiful than just being nude."
"Dressing up can sometimes take away from someone's beauty. I always think, 'Why pretend to be something you're not?'"
"I'm really happy with my body and I don't want to hide it away."
"For me, the fear of being caught is a real turn-on – getting frisky outdoors is a lot more dangerous and a lot more fun. I find the thrill of it really exciting!"

JUSTIN DUNN'S ROOM 101

WHAT'S ANNOYING HIM THIS WEEK?

Not ALL news is in Downing Street

THE "Gotcha!" moment is getting really boring now.

All the TV channels are at it. Reporters who can barely shave or are off their tits on lip balm soup and kale coffee, screaming into foam things clutched in their trembling millennial hands.

I'd have no problem with that if they weren't all in exactly the same place – ie, opposite the front door of No 10.

But that's the only place they are. Somewhere they think they might make a name for themselves.

But they ought to look around – because there is so much shit going on in this country that nobody is reporting on, as local newspapers have been killed by the internet.

No problem, you might think – but I would urge you to think again.

The demise of local papers means a demise in your knowledge of who is doing what in your locality.

Rapacious

Who's been up in magistrates, who's won the dog show, how the Sunday league got on, who's sadly died, who's left a will... and what that rapacious council has been up to.

Oh yes. The councils. Never has a more shit system of local governance been more than happy with the disappearance of a press at least trying to keep them in check.

Now, they pretty much do what they want.

Hence "low traffic neighbourhoods". Cycle lanes nobody ever asked for. Ludicrous green insanity whose wobbly provenance we are no longer allowed to question.

And then there was the man who recently got accused of beating up, and drugging up, and sexually abusing, his wife and young kids.

He hadn't been, by the way. But because someone "anonymous" filled in an online form to the cops and then pressed send, this is what happened next.

A cop car, all blues and yellows with lights on top, arrives at his house while he's out at work.

His wife and children are then subjected to a barrage of questions from someone who can barely string a sentence together.

The police person then eventually buggers off but returns on Saturday night at around 7pm just as the family is about to tuck into their chippy tea.

When the innocent but accused man answered the door, he was told that if he hadn't, they'd have "forced" entry.

But they didn't have to, because he invited them in, resolutely refused to give them a cup of tea, and asked what on earth – and why – they were there.

The accusations were that he had, and I quote, given his children "all the drugs, all the time", and that he "sexed them and everything".

Oh, and that he beat up his missus so often she looked like punch bag.

That was the point that the kids and the wife all burst out laughing and the embarrassed police person left.

Allegations

But then the council's kindly social services sent a letter to the wife – not the husband – just to explain in black and white what those vile allegations were, and how they were no longer investigating them.

The complaint? It came from a "troubled" former schoolfriend of one the guy's children after they fell out in a playground spat.

And that was it. That was enough for the prodnoses and the coppers to leap straight in. Your money well spent, eh?

Teen gunman clears beach at spring break

A TEENAGER pulled a gun during a fight on a packed beach then ran through the crowds holding the weapon.

"He's got a gun!" people shouted as they scattered in different directions on New Smyrna Beach, Florida.

A deputy from the Volusia County Sheriff's Office intervened and barked orders at the teenage gunman, then chased him while still ordering him to drop it, as other cops joined the foot pursuit and pushed back youngsters out enjoying the US spring break holiday.

Water

The gunman – later identified as Felixander Solis-Guzman, 16 – ran into the water about knee-deep, where he stood for a few minutes.

Bodycam footage shows law enforcement officers with their guns drawn, lined up along the beach.

Guzman finally dropped the gun in the water, and officers closed around him, but a deputy yelled for them to back up in case he had another gun.

Solis-Guzman soon complied with officers' orders and surrendered with his hands up.

He faces several charges including aggravated assault.

Black toes find during renovation

THE owner of a property undergoing renovations made a shock discovery when he unearthed human remains in his back garden – with blackened "toes sticking out of the ground".

The gruesome find was made at a private home being offered for rent in Jacksonville, Florida.

The homeowner was doing yard work when he uncovered the body.

A woman helping with the home makeover and working indoors at the time said the owner rushed inside, telling her to call the police.

"I said OK. But I was shaken," she said.

The woman, who did not wish to be identified, described seeing human feet protruding from the ground in the yard.

"They were all black and stuff. But I guess that was from decomposing," she said.

A Jacksonville County Sheriff's deputy came to the house and "observed two feet sticking up out of the ground".

Cops are now trying to identify the body and find a cause of death.

Pictures of English countryside can lead to 'dark, nationalist feelings' say idiots

NOW PAINTINGS ARE RACIST

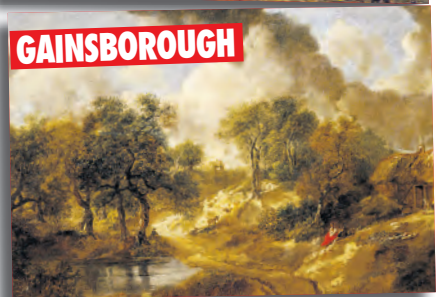

CHLOE Ferry has hit back after an online troll branded her curvy body "botched" during a Q&A session.

The TV personality, 28, invited her followers to send her messages while she made her way to London for a photo shoot.

And she later called out one of the negative questions she was asked.

She revealed someone had said: "Why do you insist on showing off your botched-up body?"

Hitting back, the former Geordie Shore scorcher responded: "Why do you insist to write this, baby?"

LOOKING at paintings of the English countryside could turn you into a big RACIST, woke nitwits claim.

The Fitzwilliam Museum has suggested that paintings of the British countryside evoke dark "nationalist feelings".

The museum, owned by the University of Cambridge, has had an overhaul of its displays, in a move its director insisted was not "woke".

Luke Syson said: "I'd love to think there's a way of telling these larger, more inclusive histories that doesn't feel as if it requires a push-back from those who try to suggest any interest at all in this work is what would now be called 'woke'."

The new signage states that pictures of "rolling English hills" can stir feelings of "pride towards a homeland".

However, in a gallery displaying a landscape work by Constable, visitors are informed "there is a darker side" to the "nationalist feeling" evoked by images of the British countryside.

It states that this national sentiment comes with "the implication that only those with a historical tie to the land have a right to belong".

Paintings at the Fitzwilliam have been reordered into themed categories, in a shake-up the museum's director hopes will make their displays "inclusive and representative".

Categories include Men Looking at Women, Identity, Migration and Movement, and Nature, which includes English landscapes by Constable, Gainsborough and Palmer, and French scenes by Pissarro, Renoir, Monet and Cézanne.

A sign for the Nature gallery states: "Landscape paintings were entangled with national identity. Paintings showing rolling English hills or lush French fields reinforced loyalty and pride towards a homeland."

Mr Syson has insisted: "Being inclusive and representative should not be controversial – it should be enriching."

Dear Tess,

LAST week I was due to fly to Milan for a business meeting. As I checked in I clocked a stunning woman in a black dress and jacket, with long raven hair and fantastic breasts. She beckoned me over and I was gobsmacked when, straight out, she asked in a thick Italian accent if I wanted "to fk". We hurried into a cubicle in the gents where she ripped her blouse open to reveal her fabulous melons and I soon had my gob round her nipples. As I hitched up her skirt and fingered her dripping pussy she squeezed my balls and massaged my cock. Then she quickly undid my flies and I rammed my throbbing manhood up her. When we'd both climaxed she did herself up and walked off without a word. But I missed the flight and now I've been sacked – should I tell the wife?

NC, Wilts

Tess says...

TELL her you've had a rise – it's true! But don't mention the Italian job!

Dear Tess,

I RECENTLY asked my girlfriend if she was interested in dabbling with some "backdoor fun". At first, she told me she had reservations, but finally agreed – on the understanding that we BOTH try it. So now she wants to strap on a big, fk-off dildo and do ME up the shitter, before she'll allow me to shag her bumhole. I know it may seem like double standards, but I feel anal for women has become "the norm" between heterosexual couples, whereas for the man to receive "pegging" seems a little bit "abnormal" to me. On a purely physical level I have no real problem doing it. But my issue lies with if – or when – I ever finish with her, how much shit will I get from my mates down the pub if she ever tells them about our intimate anal frolics. Please help!

AN, Bristol

Tess says...

IF it's OK for her to take it up the arse, then it should be the same for you.

Sale of the sin-tury

Dear Tess,

I'M a salesman and I was out promoting goods in a supermarket last week when I caught the eye of a pretty female shop assistant. We chatted a couple of times during the day and I noticed she was flirting quite openly with me – which was very flattering. Then she sidled up to me at the end of the day and asked if I minded giving her a lift to the bus stop, just down the end of the road. I agreed – thinking it would at least give me the chance to get her phone number. But I hadn't even switched on the ignition before she was trying to unzip my flies! She told me she knew of a quiet lane nearby, but when we got there it was well-lit and we went into a field next to it – by which time she'd already slipped off her knickers. I got stuck into her and she clawed at my back with her long fingernails as I pumped long, hard and deep into her wet fanny. Later I took my muddy clothes to a launderette and washed them there. And I thought I'd got away with it but the next day my wife found the girl's undercrackers under the passenger seat in our car, and she kicked me out. Please help!

AGONY IS BROUGHT TO YOU IN ASSOCIATION

WELCOME to the World famous Sport Agony page! No other newspaper's agony aunts can offer the level of advice – or experience – than our own Agony Angels! This week TESS O'REILLY has been reading through your letters. And here's her advice for you...

Nympho breast pals feel a little confused

Dear Tess,

WE'RE a couple of babes in our late teens who love flashing our bodies.

We are both at college, doing beauty and hairdressing, and we travel there on the train.

And we really love to show off our knockers to any lads stood on the opposite platforms.

The other day some fella sat opposite us on the train and as usual we were both wearing extremely short skirts with no knickers on underneath.

There was no-one else in the carriage that morning so we told him to get his cock out and we started to play with our wet holes.

Bushes

He quickly shot up all over his pants before getting off at the next stop.

That afternoon at college there was a discussion about pubic hair-shaping and the teacher encouraged us to go home that evening and try it out on our own bushes.

As me and my pal are both completely shaven down below we roped in a few of our female mates and after a few jars at our local boozer we got them to drop their knickers.

One girl had the most gorgeous pussy and she was dripping wet as we trimmed her bush into the shape of a heart.

She didn't mind when we slipped our fingers up her crack, too, and started to frig her off.

Do you think we're both lesbian?

TT and JK, Surrey

Tess says...

NO – but you're certainly randy little minxes!

Dear Tess,

MY mate's sister is not a stunna but she's got huge tits – she must be 36FF.

I was at a party a couple of weeks ago and ended up pulling her, and we went back to my place where I wasted no time getting her boobs out.

I wrapped them around my throbbing cock and just as I was about to come, she took me in her mouth and I exploded down her throat.

Later I was giving her hints that she should go when she made it clear she wanted me to knob her.

Sopping

Despite her ugly face, I managed to do as she asked – I just concentrated on her tits and it was quite a turn-on watching them wobble as I thrust into her sopping minge.

But she now thinks we are going with each other.

What should I do?

DD, Bristol

Tess says...

JUST be honest with her, and dump her.

Dear Tess,

MY insatiable girlfriend loves the idea of getting caught having sex, or while I'm licking out her fanny – in some public toilets.

She's made me shag her and taste her juices in some cramped public places and I've enjoyed it.

One time we were in a fast food place and she dragged me to a cubicle in the bogs and dropped her little panties.

She left the cubicle door unlocked and as I was pumping away and fondling her tits about six people all tried to get in and caught us in the act.

Frigged

This seemed to turn her on no end and after I'd shot my load she sat on the bog, spread her legs and fringed herself off.

Now she wants to dress up as a naughty college girl, sneak in to the local university and get down to it in the toilets.

However, I'm worried that if we got caught we may be arrested.

I've tried to put her off but she's having none of it.

She's even threatened to do it with a complete random, if I don't do it!

How can I handle this girl better?

SF, South Yorks

Tess says...

YOU'RE right – it's just too risky. Ditch her now!

FENTON

MARVELLOUS Millie Fenton has more in common with Kim Kardashian than just sexy curves.

Because the 32DD model has also starred in her own saucy SEX TAPE.

And while Kim's X-rated on-screen performance helped make her a global superstar, Millie is hoping her blue movie stays out of the public eye.

The blonde beauty, from Biddulph in Staffs, said: "I made a naughty movie many years ago with an ex.

"It was really hot – both filming it and watching it back.

"It makes you want round two, and you feel like a naughty porn star when you make one."

Millie said she loves indulging in a spot of role play, too, adding: "I love dressing up – I have a kinky maid's uniform, which is my favourite.

"I like to get into role play while wearing that... you have to drop your feather duster and then bend over to pick it up!

"I've been tied up and blindfolded wearing that, too – it was so hot.

"I love the element of surprise and not knowing what's coming next."

Q&A on Forest's points problem

NOTTINGHAM Forest have been docked four points for breaching Premier League financial rules.

The ruling drops the club into the relegation zone, leaving them 18th with nine games to play.

Here, Midweek Sport takes a closer look at the matter.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED?

Forest have had four points taken off their Premier League total by an independent commission, which drops them into the relegation zone. The club admitted breaching the league's profitability and sustainability rules (PSR).

WHAT ARE THE PSR?

These are the regulations governing a club's maximum permitted losses. Normally clubs can lose up to £105million over the three-year assessment period without being in breach, but this is reduced by £22m per season when a club is in the Championship. In Forest's case, the maximum they were allowed to lose was £61m over the assessment period.

HOW MUCH ABOVE THAT LIMIT WERE FOREST?

The club were found to be £34.5million over the threshold. The written reasons published on Monday show the Premier League was pushing for a six-point deduction – eight points to reflect Forest's excess was 77 per cent greater than Everton's breach in 2021-22, but with two discounted for Forest's early plea and exceptional co-operation.

WHAT WAS FOREST'S ARGUMENT?

Forest relied on various points in their defence, but their "golden mitigation" was the timing of the sale of Brennan Johnson to Tottenham for £47.5million. Had this occurred before the end of the assessment period on June 30, 2023 they would not have been in breach, however the player did not leave until September 1, the day the summer 2023 transfer window closed.

The commission said the decision not to sell until so late in the window "flies in the face of mitigation" and rejected all other mitigation except for the early plea and co-operation.

WHAT HAVE FOREST SAID?

Forest issued a strongly-worded statement indicating they would appeal. The club said they were "extremely dismayed by the tone and content of the Premier League's submissions" to the commission which had "harmed the trust and confidence we had in the Premier League".

The appeal outcome must be known prior to June 1 under 'standard directions' for PSR breaches agreed by clubs last summer, which are designed to be completed within the same season as a charge is laid.

Club 'dismayed' after four-point ban drops them into Premier drop zone

NOTTINGHAM Forest are "extremely dismayed" to have been docked four points for breaching Premier League financial rules.

The deduction drops Forest into the Premier League's relegation zone, leaving them 18th with nine games to play.

Midweek Sport understands Forest will now take time to consider their next steps, including the potential to appeal.

The Premier League said Forest admitted breaching profitability and sustainability rules (PSR) by £34.5million above their permitted threshold of £61million.

Clubs are usually allowed maximum losses of £105million over a three-year assessment period but this is reduced by £22m per season for any seasons within the period spent in the Championship. Forest are unhappy about the Premier's League's submission to the independent commission, which imposed the sanction, and claim trust in the governing body has now been eroded after it initially pushed for an eight-point deduction.

A club statement read: "We were extremely dismayed by the tone and content of the Premier League's submissions before the commission.

"After months of engagement with the Premier League, and exceptional cooperation throughout, this was unexpected and has harmed the trust and confidence we had in the Premier League.

"That the Premier League sought a sanction of eight points as a starting point was utterly disproportionate when compared to the nine points that their own rules prescribe for insolvency."

The commission which imposed the sanction noted Forest's breach was "serious" and stated in its conclusion: "The four points sanction is not to punish Forest so much as it is to be fair to the other clubs; to give the public confidence that when a club invests as Forest did to compete in the Premier League, it still needs to comply with the PSR threshold for losses."

Integrity

The commission ruling added: "When a club like Forest took the risk of effectively ignoring the PSR warning from its finance director before the January window in 2023, and rather than looking to sell players, it added players to its squad, ultimately leaving itself with just two weeks to sell Player A (Brennan Johnson) in the summer 2023 window, such risk taking and 'sailing close to the wind' needs a proportionate sanction to maintain the integrity of the Premier League."

Everton were docked 10 points in November for breaching PSR in the period up to the 2021-22 season, which was reduced to six on appeal.

A second complaint against the Toffees over a breach up to last season is still being dealt with.

The ruling shows the Premier League pushed for a six-point sanction – with eight points as an initial figure to account for Forest's excess over the threshold being 77 per cent greater than Everton's, but discounted by two points to reflect Forest's early plea and co-operation.

Forest's defence was centred around the sale of Brennan Johnson to Tottenham on the final day of the 2023 transfer window, which occurred a short period later than necessary. The commission said such an event could only have been described as a near miss "if it was truly near to the PSR deadline (June 30, 2023) or at the first available reasonable opportunity proximate to the deadline".

But Forest hit back, saying the ruling will make it impossible for newly-promoted clubs to compete in the league.

The statement added: "Whilst the Premier League may have called into question the club's business plan, the club maintains it responsibly balanced compliance with PSR with investment into the squad to give us the ability to compete in the league for the first time in over 20 years."

"We were extremely dismayed by the tone and content of the Premier League's submissions before the commission."

"Even after the club had missed the PSR reporting deadline, it still took steps to ensure Brennan Johnson was sold before the end of the transfer window. That was a clear demonstration of our respect and support for PSR.

"The commission's decision raises issues of concern for all aspirant clubs. The player transfer market is a highly specialised trading environment that cannot be compared to the sale of normal products and services."

"There will be occasions when a player transfer cannot be completed in the first half of a transfer window and can only be completed at the end of that window."

"This should not be a reason for the condemnation of a club. For this not to be recognised by the commission or the Premier League should be a matter of extreme concern for all fans of our national game."

FRENCH FANCY:
Manu Tuilagi

Tuilagi calls time on Red Rose career

RUGBY UNION

MANU Tuilagi has played his final game for England after agreeing to join French club Bayonne next season in a two-year deal.

Tuilagi will depart Sale in June with the outcome of a medical the last hurdle before the move is finalised.

The 32-year-old centre won his 60th cap in Saturday's 33-31 defeat by France in Lyon after coming on as a replacement for Henry Slade in the 59th minute.

Rugby Football Union regulations mean that any player leaving the Gallagher Premiership becomes ineligible for international selection.

Tuilagi has been an automatic pick in the midfield for four England coaches due to the power he provides on both sides of the ball.

However, his career has been heavily interrupted by a number of serious injuries including groin, chest, hamstring, knee and a broken hand.

Had he been fit for every match since his debut in 2011, he would have amassed 156 caps.

Ollie Lawrence's rampaging performance against France, which included two tries, suggests England have finally found his successor as a hard running centre but Tuilagi's unique physicality means he will never be truly replaced.

Bayonne are ninth in the Top 14 table and the move is expected to be officially confirmed this week.

Danny Care will take stock before deciding on his international future after contributing to an encouraging Guinness Six Nations for England.

Care won his 101st cap as a replacement in Saturday's agonising defeat by France in Lyon that saw a long-range penalty by Thomas Ramos seize victory for Les Bleus in the final minute.

The 37-year-old provided

NEW DEAL: Danny Care

cover for Alex Mitchell throughout the championship and deputised in the starting XV when England's first-choice scrum-half was injured for the defeat by Scotland in round three.

Now one of the most exciting players in English rugby is facing a crossroads moment as he nears the end of his test career while yet to agree a new contract for next season with Harlequins.

"It's 101 and still not out at the moment! I'm going to go home and assess and speak to the family. I've not made big decisions yet," Care said.

"But I've loved being a part of this team. I genuinely have. The past year yes, but particularly the past seven weeks in this Six Nations have been some of my favourite times in an England shirt."

"The result against Ireland was an unbelievable feeling. I thought we were going to do it again and maybe surpass it against France."

"The icing on the cake would have been another win but it wasn't to be. But I've never been prouder to wear an England shirt."

"If it had all finished a couple of years ago it would have been a bit meh, a bit rubbish, so I'm delighted with how the last year has gone," he added.

PRAIRIE WOLF

PRAIRIE WOLF READY TO ROAR

By MIKE FRANCIS

PRAIRIE WOLF can build on his impressive win last time out when returning to action in the Maximum Eco For Biotechnology Novices' Limited Handicap Chase at Haydock.

Although up 7lb for that Catterick victory, the ground will again be to his liking and he can make it a quickfire double for Sue Smith and Nick Scholfield. The seven-year-old also gave a good account of himself in a Class Two race at Cheltenham in January when fourth to Ginny's Destiny, who went on to only be beaten narrowly by Grey Dawning in the Grade One Turners at the Festival.

Victory

He is 13lb higher than when winning his maiden chase at Doncaster in mid-December but should have enough in the tank to make it three from five over the bigger obstacles overall.

Ali Star Bert can make it a hat-trick when stepping up in class and distance in the Greyland 25th Anniversary Handicap Chase.

The eight-year-old has just a 3lb rise to contend with from a recent victory over three miles at Wetherby and is only 7lb higher than for a Southwell victory earlier last month, while travelling an extra half a mile on ground he favours will suit.

Shantou Moon can get back to winning ways in the Maximum Eco For Sustainability Handicap Hurdle.

He was narrowly beaten into third at Catterick at the end of last month when held up and is on the same mark as that race, while only 4lb higher than when a neck second to the fast-finishing Champ Royal at the same course.

On ground he relishes, from the bottom of the handicap, Shantou Moon can add to his January victory at the North Yorkshire venue for Tristan Davidson and Harry Reed.

Accidental Legend can edge Fergal O'Brien closer to a century of wins in the Discover What's Trending At Rhino.Bet Casino Handicap Hurdle at Market Rasen.

O'Brien will be keen to get out of the nervous nineties as soon as possible and the seven-year-old can go one better than when a blunder at the final obstacle saw him concede victory to Burrows Hall at Catterick late last month.

That followed on from another second-place finish at Chepstow but the drop back in trip to just under three miles can help him rediscover his winning form.

On the all-weather at Southwell, all eyes will be on Night Raider in the opening Boost Your Acca At BetMGM Novice Stakes.

Karl Burke's colt created a huge impression when romping home by nine lengths on his racecourse bow in mid-December and big things are expected of him as a three-year-old.

Isle of Sark can return to the winner's enclosure for the first time in nearly four years in the BetUK. It's Where The UK Bets Handicap.

Jamie Osborne's six-year-old has got progressively better on the all-weather and can learn from consecutive second place finishes to go one better under the trainer's daughter Saffie.

Elliott up for title challenge after KO

UNITED LOSS SPURS HARVEY

LIVERPOOL midfielder Harvey Elliott believes their challenge for the Premier League and in Europe will benefit from a disappointing FA Cup exit as it will free up space in the calendar.

The 20-year-old tried to put a positive spin on their chaotic 4-3 extra-time quarter-final defeat at Old Trafford by suggesting it will allow them extra days for recovery.

Manager Jurgen Klopp admitted in the aftermath of defeat it was the first time he had seen his players struggle physically as they played their 46th game of a season which has at least another 12 fixtures and potentially more if they get past Atalanta in the Europa League's last eight.

The cup exit equates to, at most, only two fewer games but it does mean their league match at Fulham scheduled for April 20 will not be shunted into midweek, especially as the club still have a Merseyside derby at Goodison Park to fit in.

"Now we can focus on other things, it frees up a few weeks for us," said Elliott, who came off the bench to put Liverpool 3-2 up in extra time.

"Not as many games any more so the lads can be fresh and we can recover properly and focus on the rest of the season."

The defeat was only Liverpool's third in domestic competition this season, and of the two they lost in Europe one was a dead rubber against Union Saint-Gilloise.

However, while it was a blow, especially losing to their arch-rivals, Elliott insists the players will not allow it to put a dent in their ambitions for the rest of the season.

By PAUL THOMAS

"Our confidence is always there, it isn't going to affect us at all," he added.

"Yeah, we're going to be annoyed that we didn't win but we're going away with internationals now, so we can forget about it and come back after the break fresh again ready to crack down and fight for the rest of the season."

"Confidence-wise it's not going to do anything to us because we had the game in our hands, had many chances but just didn't put them away."

Situation

"It's always going to be there and we just need to keep going as a team through the games."

Klopp has seen enough of his squad, especially some of their comebacks this season to snatch late victories, to be confident they will not allow the setback to derail them when they return at home to Brighton and Hove Albion on March 31.

"We've played football for ages and you lose games – if that always leads to a mental state or situation where you need help... it's just a normal thing," he said.

"We all fail on a daily basis, maybe without even recognising it – we just get along with it."

"I got the question already (about) what kind of reaction I expect now."

"Nothing, they go to their countries and I hope they come back and have nothing (injury-wise) and then we think about Brighton when they come back."

"In general the team is in an outstanding situation in the moment."

"That we got through all of these different, difficult situations is absolutely exceptional."

Striker Darwin Nunez is understood to have pulled out of Uruguay's squad for friendlies against the Basque Country and Ivory Coast in France as a precaution after reporting a hamstring problem he picked up during the Old Trafford defeat.

AMP POWERS UP FOR 50TH CAP

ETHAN Ampadu insists he has a lot more to achieve in football as he prepares to become the youngest Welshman to win 50 caps.

Ampadu is set to break Chris Gunter's record at the tender age of 23 in Thursday's Euro 2024 play-off semi-final against Finland in Cardiff.

The versatile Leeds player, who can operate at centre-back or in midfield, will reach the 50-cap milestone at the same age as Wayne Rooney and Michael Owen.

"Everyone wants to try and achieve it as quickly as they can," said Ampadu, who made his Wales debut against France as a 17-year-old in 2017.

"Whether that was by the time I was 23 or 28, just to achieve the milestone itself is a massive achievement. I'm not really too interested on how quick you can do it."

"I'm still young but I've experienced a lot, which I'm very grateful for."

"I'm hoping I've still got a long way to go in the game and I can achieve a lot more."

"It's just nice to hopefully reach the milestone, but it's more important we get to the Euros. That's massive."

"I would probably enjoy that more, especially that feeling as a squad, and as fans we all deserve that."

Ampadu was identified as a future Wales player while still a schoolboy studying for GCSEs in his home city of Exeter, qualifying for the Dragons through his Welsh-born mother Wendy.

He was capped by England at Under-16 level, but insists he always felt Welsh growing up and trained with Gareth Bale and company ahead of Wales reaching the semi-finals of Euro 2016.

Ampadu said: "My dad took me up to the Vale (Wales' training base) and I remember that drive. I was a very nervous young boy."

"The first person I met was Ben Davies, he said 'hello' and we had a short conversation."

"He might not remember it, but he made it very easy and it was very warming."

"Just that initial 'hello' and 'how are you?' was quite settling for me."

Man United hero happy to wait for his chance for regular first team run

MAN United's FA Cup hero Amad Diallo is prepared to be patient in order to get his chance at the club.

The 21-year-old, in only his fourth appearance of the season, came off the bench to score a dramatic winner deep into stoppage time at the end of extra time to make it 4-3 against Liverpool.

Amad spent last season on loan at Sunderland in the Championship, having previously had six months at Rangers. He has only made a total of 13 United appearances with his last start coming in May 2021, following his move from Atalanta.

But he is prepared to be patient as he waits for more chances at first-team level.

"It was important for me to go on loan to get more confidence and experience, so now I am at Manchester United," said Amad, who was sent off for a second bookable offence after removing his shirt in celebration.

"I am very happy to stay here and every game for me is like a Champions League final. To score the final goal is so important for me.

"I believe in myself. I train hard every day and waited for my chance. The manager believes in me.

"I am on the bench but every time I am ready to come in and fight for the team. If I score for the team, then I am very happy."

"I wait for my chance and whether I start or I am on the bench it is important for me to be ready every time."

The goal was only Amad's second in United colours, his first coming in a Europa League draw with AC Milan two years ago.

And the joy of scoring the winner against his team's arch-rivals meant the Ivory Coast international was unable to rein in his celebrations in front of the Stretford End, resulting in his sending-off.

"I forgot the first yellow – but it was important we won, so I am very happy," he added.

Chance

"It was an unbelievable day for me. I want to celebrate this moment with my family and the fans, who supported us all game.

"It is very special for me because it was my dream to play for Manchester United. I was in Sunderland last season and I came here to wait for my chance.

"To score my second goal for United was very important for me."

Manchester United skipper Bruno

Fernandes is determined to end a poor season on a high.

Diallo's strike sparked wild celebrations and secured an FA Cup semi-final against Coventry, breathing new life into a season that had threatened to go into a tailspin.

Asked if he had ever seen scenes like that at Old Trafford before, captain Fernandes said: "I think the last year probably against Liverpool, it was the turnaround of last season and kind of the same.

"Today the game got a little bit spicy, a little more special because it's an FA Cup game and if you lose, you're out.

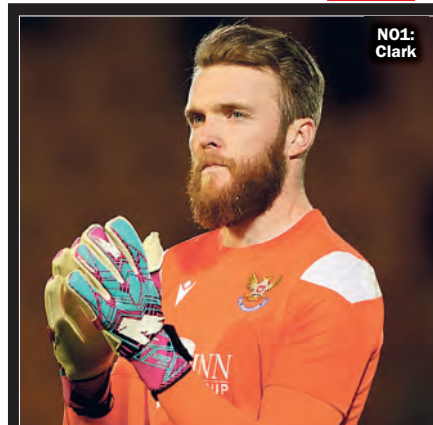

"We know the rivalry between fans, we know how United fans wanted us to win the game to give us something to celebrate because it's not been great for us."

The key victory Fernandes referenced came in August 2022 after Ten Hag began his United reign

Two Hearts stoppers in Euro fight

PAUL Gallacher revealed how Zander Clark and Craig Gordon are pushing each other to new heights as he backed the Hearts goalkeepers to go to Euro 2024 with Scotland.

Clark and Gordon are both with Steve Clarke's squad for friendlies against Netherlands and Northern Ireland, alongside keepers Angus Gunn of Norwich and Motherwell's Liam Kelly. The Scotland boss has said that – barring injury – three of those four will go to the Euros, and Hearts goalkeeping coach Gallacher would be “immensely proud” if he is waving both of his main men off to Germany.

“They’ve both worked ever so hard to get to where they are, both for different reasons,” the former Scotland goalkeeper said.

Gordon, 41, was the undisputed number one for both Scotland and Hearts prior to sustaining a career-threatening double leg break 15 months ago.

Clark took the gloves at Tynecastle after Gordon's injury and has held on to them since the veteran returned to contention.

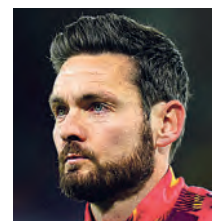

The 31-year-old former St Johnstone keeper has kept 14 clean sheets in 30 league matches this term and also won his first three Scotland caps in the first half of the season.

Gallacher has been impressed with how both men have dealt with their respective challenges over the past year and a bit.

“Craig’s back, he’s absolutely back,” said the goalie coach. “You see him make saves every day in training and you just go ‘yep, that’s him back’.

“He’s got himself into a fantastic condition, he’s back to where he was before the injury. He’s top-notch, he’s world class at times, he really is.

“Obviously he’s not getting any younger but he keeps on pushing, and I think that’s pushing

N02: Gordon

Zander on as well. You can see the level Zander’s hit. From where he was to where he is now is night and day.

“He was a good goalkeeper when he first came to the club but he has kicked on under severe pressure.

“Not a lot of folk could cope with that pressure of coming in to replace Craig, a Hearts legend, but he’s stood up and done it, which is no easy feat. That cannot be underestimated.

“There has been pressure but they’ve dealt with it brilliantly.”

Gunn appears to have become Scotland’s first-choice since Gordon’s injury, but Gallacher is adamant both Hearts goalies would be equipped to play.

“I know from working closely with them how the two of them can handle occasions,” said Gallacher, who won eight Scotland caps.

“Zander, the way he’s playing, could handle it no problem at all. And Craig, with the number of caps he’s got, could be pitched in no problem at all.

“I know it might come across as biased but I’d have no qualms at all about either of them being in that starting line-up.”

Gallacher laughed off any notion that their mutual determination to play for club and country might have had a detrimental effect on the relationship between Gordon and Clark.

“They’re brilliant, honestly, there is no animosity whatsoever,” he said. “They’re great guys, brilliant to be around.”

with defeats to Brighton and Brentford.

That season ended up with Carabao Cup glory, reaching the FA Cup final and a third-placed league finish and the Dutchman hopes Sunday can be the turning point after several false dawns as they look to chase down a Champions League finish.

“We’ve talked about turnarounds but have never done the next step,” Fernandes said. “But I think we have to understand the FA Cup is a thing and the Premier League is another one.

“In the league now, we have 10 matches to go and we don’t depend on ourselves but as we saw Tottenham losing points to Fulham, Villa losing points to West Ham.

“But our main goal is to not lose points to Brentford away.

We need to put our effort into winning that game.”

Fifth could prove enough for Champions League qualification as sixth-placed United look to reel in Aston Villa and Tottenham, while the FA Cup offers a chance to top it off in glorious fashion.

Respect

Cheers were heard from suites around Old Trafford when Coventry were drawn rather than Manchester City or Chelsea but there is little chance of semi-final complacency.

“Obviously we’re playing a Championship team and not a Premier League team, but Wolves went out against them,” Fernandes said.

“We don’t want to compare ourselves with Wolves but we have to respect every team that comes here because I remember two seasons ago we went out against Middlesbrough at home.

“We have to respect them, give them the respect they deserve and give our best performance, as we did against Liverpool and with the same mentality.”

Fernandes epitomised that approach, filling in at centre-back – a role he said he used to play as a kid – and playing through a dead leg as his remarkable record of availability continued.

“It’s not proud, I just have to be grateful for my father and my mum because they made me the right way, the strong way,” the Portugal playmaker said.

“They’ve been here for the last two games and they give me that extra energy. With my kids and my wife, they always take care of me.”

HANLEY PULLS OUT OF SQUAD

GRANT Hanley has withdrawn from the Scotland squad for the friendlies against Netherlands and Northern Ireland as Norwich strive to get the defender back to full fitness.

The 26-year-old has made nine appearances for the Canaries since returning on Boxing Day after eight months out with an Achilles injury.

However, Hanley has missed his club's last two matches in the Championship after limping out of their defeat at Middlesbrough earlier this month.

Norwich manager David Wagner said: "He is a very physical centre-half. If he is physically on his best then he is one of the best. We have to make sure, and he feels the same, to get him back to that level.

"So we now pull him out of team training and we give him a proper individual programme in the next couple of weeks, or how long it will take, to get back to that level."

100,000 NEW TRAFFORD

Sir Jim's vision for huge United stadium

SIR Jim Ratcliffe wants to build a new 100,000-seat stadium next to the current Old Trafford.

The new Manchester United part-owner was inspired by a visit to Real Madrid's new Bernabeu.

He wants the Red Devils to have the same wow factor in a ground that could cost as much as £2 BILLION and would be the best in the world.

He said: "If you look at what Real Madrid are doing now with the Bernabeu and what Barcelona with the Nou Camp, the Bernabeu now is fabulous, it's like a cauldron of noise it's really impressive.

"The Premier League needs to have some grounds that are the equal of our European competitors. We have got an opportunity to build a new ground, because we have got enough space.

"If you built a completely new ground it would be state-of-the-art, world class, 90,000 or maybe even 100,000 that then provides a platform for some of the big competitions in the north of England.

"Why do England always play in the south? Why is the FA Cup final always in the south?

"Why can't the Champions League final be in the north occasionally?

"Football in the north is just as important as it is in the south, arguably more so.

"What have we got in the north? There's a strong argument to build a 'Wembley of the north'."
